ATLANTA (June 9, 2023) – Look Up Atlanta announced the winners of the Georgia Talent Showcase set to perform at the signature fireworks and music event in Centennial Olympic Park on Saturday, July 1. The Georgia Talent Showcase is in its inaugural year and gives aspiring Georgia-based entertainers the chance to perform live on the historic Centennial Olympic Park stage.

From May 8 – 26, Georgia residents were invited to submit their auditions on the Look Up Atlanta website. After receiving an overwhelming response, 20 semifinalists auditioned. After a rigorous two days of auditions, 10 musicians were selected to perform at Look Up Atlanta. These 10 musicians will fulfill a dream to one day perform on the signature Centennial Olympic Park stage, the same stage as OutKast, Dave Matthews Band, Mumford & Sons, Zac Brown Band and other notable musicians.

“All of these artists have their own musical style and inspiration,” said Shavannia Williams, Director, Strategic Partnerships, and producer of the Georgia Talent Showcase. “They all share a common love for Georgia and its entertainment industry. Their individual stories reflect this passion, and show the diverse, and unique talent that can be found here, in Georgia.”

The winners in the first-ever Georgia Talent Showcase auditions join a jam-packed lineup of musical acts. Each musician in the Georgia Talent Showcase will perform as a lead-in to a headlining performance by the Atlanta Symphony Orchestra, its final performance of its 78th season, followed by the largest metropolitan fireworks show in the country. The 10 local musicians will perform a variety of songs, both originals and Georgia classics.
